

THIS YEAR'S 84TH ANNUAL MEETING IN ALBUQUERQUE

The meeting will be held at the Albuquerque Convention Center (ACC) and the headquarters hotel, Hyatt Regency Albuquerque, which are adjacent to each other. Events are scheduled at both locations. As always, the final program will detail the location of specific events.

Suggested Statement of Tribal

Recognition: The SAA Committee on Native American Relations (CNAR) provides this optional statement for meeting attendees to read in recognition of the local tribes and pueblos of Albuquerque. The committee recognizes that some people may have their own statement they would like to present, while others may choose not to participate at all. The CNAR provides the statement below so that SAA members and meeting attendees who would like to make a statement may do so, without concern or uncertainty about what words to choose.

I would like to take a moment to respectfully acknowledge that this meeting is being held on the ancestral homelands of 34 pueblos and tribes, as well as other traditional and indigenous communities currently lacking federal recognition. I would like to recognize these communities and their continued and sincere relationship with the landscape.

Internet Access: Attendees will have access to Wi-Fi while they are in the meeting space at the Albuquerque Convention Center. We still advise participants to make sure that their presentations are accessible off-line. The Wi-Fi connection can be unreliable and will not be strong enough to stream videos or run a session or a presentation.

SAA'S ANNUAL MEETING APP

ANTI-HARASSMENT POLICY

The SAA is dedicated to providing a harassment-free meeting experience for everyone, regardless of sex, gender, identity and expression, sexual orientation, disability, physical appearance, ethnicity, religion, or age. Harassment is unwanted attention that a recipient experiences as offensive or disruptive to their wellbeing. Harassment not only sabotages the individual; it also damages the SAA's community by discouraging participation in the Society and compromising the exchange of ideas that is at the center of SAA's mission to promote and stimulate interest and research in the archaeology of the Americas.

Sexual harassment is behavior that demeans, humiliates, or threatens an individual on the basis of their sex or gender and can include crude behavior (such as offensive statements, jokes, or gestures); dismissive or insulting modes of address (such as referring to a woman not by her first name but as "babe"); unwelcome sexual attention (such as unwanted touching or repeated requests for dates); and coercion. Sex-based harassment also takes nonsexual forms when an individual is targeted because of their gender expression. It singles out some members of the community as acceptable targets and as unworthy of respect.

All of the spaces into which SAA's professional meetings extend are professional, and the values of respect, equity, multicultural pluralism, and non-discrimination should inform conduct in formal sessions, meetings, and informal conversations over coffee and over drinks. All members should aspire to treat each member as having an equally valuable contribution to make. All members should remember our society is enriched from multicultural differences.

This policy applies to all attendees of SAA-sponsored conferences, meetings, or workshops including presenters, students, guests, staff, contractors, and exhibitors throughout the conference space whether participating in the program, tours, meetings, social event, or other function. The SAA Principles of Archaeological Ethics equally apply.

However, should an incident occur while at an SAA-sponsored conference, meeting, workshop, tour, or social event, or other function, the SAA President, the SAA Executive Director, SAA Staff, or any SAA Officer may be considered safe authorities with whom incidents can be discussed. The SAA will have mechanisms at each Annual Meeting to keep our conference a respectful environment for all its participants.

ANTI-HARASSMENT PROCEDURES AT 2019 ANNUAL MEETING

The SAA President, the SAA Executive Director, SAA Staff, or any SAA Officer may be considered safe authorities with whom incidents can be discussed. These individuals will wear green "Talk to me" buttons at the 2019 Meeting. SAA Staff is available at the staff office (located in Maya room) and at the registration booth (in the West Lobby) during registration hours. Individuals coming forward with concerns will be asked to provide details of the incident or incidents, time and place, names of individuals involved and names of any witnesses. Please note that a sufficient amount of detail is needed in order for SAA to respond.

Upon the receipt of a complaint of offensive behavior by an SAA conference attendee, SAA will undertake the following procedure:

If the allegations involve what is likely to be criminal conduct, the SAA Executive Director shall notify the local police, contact SAA legal counsel and so inform the complainant. SAA shall not undertake further review of the matter once it has been reported to local authorities but may later evaluate the outcome of any criminal investigation in order to determine whether the alleged harasser should be permitted to participate in any future SAA programs and conferences;

If the allegations do not likely constitute criminal conduct, the SAA Executive Director shall attempt to verify the offensive behavior in a confidential manner as recommended by SAA legal counsel;

If the offensive behavior cannot be verified, SAA will so inform the person making the complaint and remind the person that they can report the behavior to the Register of Professional Archaeologists and/or to the alleged harasser's institution or employer;

If the offensive behavior is verified in a manner deemed appropriate by the SAA Executive Director and SAA legal counsel, the SAA Executive Director shall so inform the SAA President and, in conjunction with SAA legal counsel, determine the appropriate course of action taking into account various factors including, but not limited to, the following: a) the severity of the offensive behavior; b) the setting of the offensive behavior; c) whether the alleged harasser appeared to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs; and d) the duration remaining in the conference;

The courses of action which may be taken by SAA include, but are not limited to, any or all of the following: a) immediate removal from the conference; b) an on-site discussion with the alleged harasser to inform them of the complaint, to advise them that this behavior violates SAA's anti-harassment policy, and to direct that such behavior must cease immediately or the person will be removed from the conference;

Following the conference, the SAA Executive Committee shall meet to review all complaints received during the conference to determine whether SAA should modify the conference program, the submission process, the anti-harassment policy and procedures, and whether any of the complaints warrant further monitoring by SAA and/or the individual to be informed that they may no longer attend SAA programs and conference for a set period of time or indefinitely;

In all cases, SAA will limit disclosure of information and to only such information necessary to verify the offensive behavior and only to those on a "need to know" basis; and Should any complaint allege offensive behavior by the SAA Executive Director, the above procedure shall be undertaken by the SAA President instead or, if the SAA President is also alleged to have engaged in offensive behavior, by any other SAA officer.

SAA is not an adjudicating body. An informant can file a complaint with the Register of Professional Archaeologists and/or has the right to complain to the offender's employer (university, government agency, etc.).

Learning from the Past, Looking Towards the Future: Archaeological Ethics and the SAA

The Society for American Archaeology’s Ethics Committee has studied in detail the SAA’s Ethical Principles and has recommended to the Board of Directors that the SAA consider updating and revising them to reflect today’s standards and norms. The Board of Directors has appointed the second of several sequential Task Forces to gather input and feedback about the Ethical Principles. This forum will provide an opportunity for the Society’s members to engage in a discourse on what ethical concerns the membership wish to consider as part of the process of evaluating and revising its Ethical Principles. As with similar forums, the organizers will prepare a series of framing questions to begin the conversation and sustain it. The audience will also be encouraged to participate by contributing questions of their own.

Pecos National Monument

7:00 a.m.–1:00 p.m.; minimum 40–maximum 49 persons; $72.00

Pecos National Historical Park is located just east of Santa Fe in the beautiful Sangre de Cristo Mountains. It encompasses thousands of acres of landscape infused with historical elements, from prehistoric archaeological ruins to 19th-century ranches, the remnants of an old Spanish church, and beautiful landscapes. Its largest single feature is Pecos Pueblo, a Native American community abandoned in historic times. First a state monument in 1935, it was made Pecos National Monument in 1965, and greatly enlarged and renamed in 1990. Two sites within the park, the pueblo and the Glorieta Pass Battlefield are National Historic Landmarks. Here you will travel back in time to the once-populated Pecos Pueblo and take a walking tour of the ancestral sights.

SATURDAY, APRIL 13

Petroglyph National Monument

8:00 a.m.–12:30 p.m.; minimum 40–maximum 49 persons; $45.00

Petroglyph National Monument stretches 17 miles along Albuquerque's West Mesa, a volcanic basalt escarpment that dominates the city's western horizon. This unique site protects a variety of cultural and natural resources, including five volcanic cones, hundreds of archeological sites, and an estimated 25,000 images that have been pecked, chiseled, or carved into the volcanic rock surface by native peoples and early Spanish settlers. Many of the images are recognizable as animals, people, brands, and crosses; others are more complex. Their meaning, possibly understood only by the carver, is inseparable from the greater cultural landscape and from the spirits of the people who created them. These people, who lived along the Rio Grande River for many centuries, come alive again through these images carved on the shiny black rocks and provide glimpses into a 12,000-year-long story of human life in the area.

Bandelier National Monument

10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m.; minimum 40–maximum 49 persons; $79.00

Head to Bandelier National Monument, which is best known for its mesas, sheer-walled canyons and the ancestral Pueblo dwellings found among them. This fascinating archaeological site, situated at 7,000 feet above sea level, encompasses over 32,000 acres of wilderness crisscrossed by 60 miles of maintained trails. The Park was designated in 1916 and named for nineteenth-century archaeologist Adolph Bandelier. Frijoles Canyon is famous for its extensive Ancestral Pueblo People ruins and cliff dwellings that date back to approximately AD 1100. The Ancestral Pueblo People farmed this canyon for over 400 years and lived in multi-storied stone and mud structures or in caves carved out of the volcanic cliffs. Here, you will enjoy climbing the ladders into the caves and kivas. Boxed lunches will be provided.
